Unusual 'Whyte' poppy cultivated

Story and photos
By IRENE GAASCH

Back in 1969, four unusual poppy plants appeared in the Carmel Valley yard of Sterling and Felicia Mummert. The Mummerts did not think too much of poppies appearing in their garden because they knew the seeds were widely spread by birds.

The surprise came when the flowers bloomed. Rather than the traditional golden color, the poppies were white. "We were very pleased, and transplanted them into our flower bed," said, Sterling. Unfortunately they lost all four plants.

The next spring, the plants appeared again in roughly the same section of the yard. Since Felicia Mummert had died that fall, Sterling was especially pleased to have a second chance to cultivate the poppies. He named them the "Whyte" poppy, which was his late wife's maiden name.

"When I saw those plants, I said to myself, 'Boy, this is it'," said Sterling. He transplanted the plants into pots and "babied" them into adulthood. At the end of the flowering season, he gathered the seeds and has had ample flowers and seeds since then.

Once the flowers are established, says Mummert, they reseed themselves and need very little care.

There are about 50 species of poppies. This white-flower variety is probably the corn poppy (papver Rhoeas), a native of the Old World. It is common in gardens, but very seldom seen in the wild.

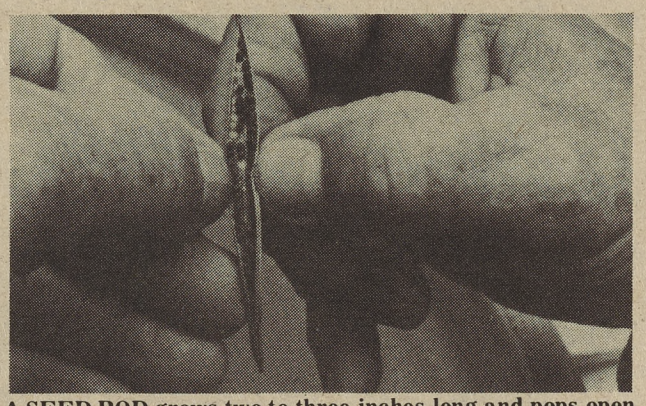
Mummert has had plant experts look at his "Whyte" poppy and they say they have not seen one similar to his plant. He admits he doesn't know the botanical background of the flower, though.

THE "WHYTE" POPPY grows in the flower beds adjacent to the Carmel Valley Branch Library.

His concern is to see the flower growing in the area, mostly in memory of his wife. Mummert, who has been collecting the seeds from the many poppy plants he's cultivated, says he would be happy to give seeds to anyone interested in growing the flowers.

Mummert finds it's best to sow the seeds in a tray. He mixes the tiny seeds with sand before shallowly (about ⅛ of an inch) planting them. The plants take about six weeks to germinate. Then they "come up like hair on a dog", says Mummert.

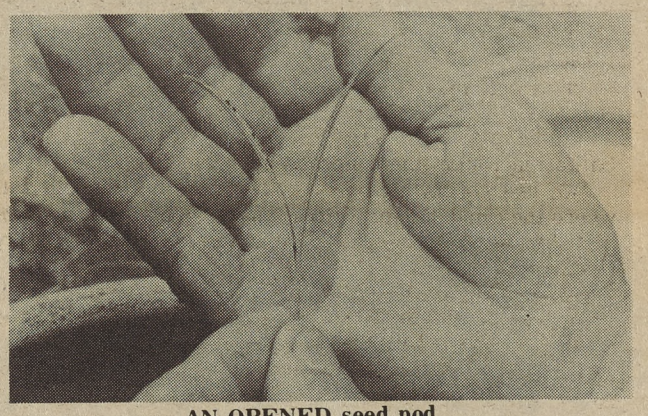
Watering should be done once a week during the six week period, and should continue weekly for the life of the plant. When the plants are about three or four inches tall, they may be transferred to the garden site.



A SEED POD grows two to three inches long and pops open, scattering seeds as it does.

Mummert says they like sawdust and sunshine. "They're pretty hardy, once they get established," he said, adding that they like a "wild and wooly" climate.

After the plants have bloomed, the seed pods may be picked or left to resow themselves. The pods are long and thin, "ping" open when ready and "pop" seeds around, thus giving the poppy it's name, according to Mummert. The pods should look dry and be a golden-brown color when the seeds are ripe. This is the best time to collect them if you want to have seeds for the next year, says Mummert.



AN OPENED seed pod.

The tiny seeds (about one millimeter) resemble poppy seeds used in breads and baked goods. The seeds which come from the opium poppy, were known to the Egyptians earlier than 1500 B.C., according to the "Larousse Gastronomique" cook book. Their shell is much softer than the seeds of other species of poppies.

Although the poppy flower has no aroma, there's nothing more rewarding than a bed of blooming poppies in Mummert's opinion. He said, "they're a happy flower."

STERLING MUMMERT transplants the poppy plants in cartons after they have grown to three or four inches in seed flats. Then he gives plants to friends and neighbors.

Dear Editor:

Cachagua.

What does it mean?

Some say hidden waters.

Cachagua plays a small part in the lives of everyone on the Monterey Peninsula only if it means water supply from the dam, recreation during fishing and deer season, or just a Sunday drive camping in the hills.

The drive home after work means extra time and conveniences are limited, but the advantages are the friendly people that work together helping each other.

The help we need now is supporting our local Cachagua volunteer fire department.

There will be a bake sale Saturday, Aug. 7 at the Cachagua store.

We need donations for our rummage sale Aug. 21-22. Can you help us to protect Cachagua in fire protection?

Seniors lose tourney

By ART BLACK, JR.

The Carmel Senior League All Stars with what must have been a strong sense of deja vu, were defeated in the money game of the 1976 Region IV Championships in Cupertino last Saturday. Carmel had gone for the crown last season in Gilroy — only to be defeated by Cupertino National in the final game of the series.

This year, the scene and the cast of characters were different, but the outcome was the same. Carmel fell to San Mateo Senior League 6-2 in the champiionship game. San Mateo's Matt Sullivan was the winning pitcher; Mark Dodd, who was pulled in the fifth in favor of David McKenzie, was the loser. David Spear pitched the last two innings for Carmel. Carmel's two runs came in their sixth inning when Sinclair Thomson singled, stole second, and scored on Mark Dodd's double (the game's only extra base hit). Dodd crossed the plate via Tim Sherman's sacrifice which advanced Dodd to third, and a RBI single by Carmel catcher Paul St. Germain.

Carmel began their All Star tournaments this season in the District 39 playoffs — a best-of-three series against San Lorenzo Valley from the Santa Cruz Mountains. Carmel won two straight with relative ease — the opener was a 13-0 two-hitter by Mark Dodd, and the clincher was a 14-1 slaughter with John Lucido going the distance for Carmel and allowing only two hits while whiffing 14 batters.

Carmel entered the Region IV Tournament at Cupertino's Monte Vista High School against District 9 Champion Salinas Senior League. Again, Mark Dodd was the man of the hour as Carmel defeated Salinas 10-5. Dodd, in addition to being the winning pitcher of record, doubled to spark a Carmel attack which had a 3-RBI triple by Tim Sherman. For Salinas, pitcher Dexter Mannel homered and doubled to lead the Salinas batters.

Cupertino National, defending champion of Region IV from last season, and who had defeated Carmel twice last year to eliminate Carmel from the further competition, again gained the victory circle by outbatting Carmel 11-9. Oscar Dowd was the game's big bat, doubling and slugging a round-tripper. John Lucido, relieved in the seventh stanza by David Spear, was tagged with the loss. Mark Dodd, Carmel's "wunderkind", doubled and tripled for a .667 plate performance. Carmel's Mark Clark was the game's leading hitter with a perfect 3-3 mark.

In the loser's bracket, Carmel took on Los Altos Hills the next evening, and emerged cluthing a 6-3 victory. Pat Kelly was credited with the win, Ron

Brush fire hazard high; risks may be controllable

By GINNY SMITH

This summer, the Peninsula area is drier than its been since the drought in 1924. Because of the water shortage, the brush and trees are terribly dry. The hillsides are starkly golden and dusty, begging for a drink.

"So far, we've been very lucky," says Hank Weston, State Forest Ranger at the California Division of Forestry. "We've had numerous small fires in the area, but thanks to early detection, lots of manpower, and sheer luck, we haven't had anything too major yet."

The fire danger is ever present. Because of the water shortage this year, brush and trees haven't absorbed the normal amount of moisture. They are already as dry as they usually are in October.

"The fire hazard is higher than it's ever been," says Brian Steen, Forest Service Fire Prevention Technician in Big Sur. "There haven't been too many bad fires this year because people are being especially careful about preventing them."

Steen explains that there is a difference between 'hazard' and 'risk' where fires are concerned. Hazard refers to the physical environment and its vulnerability toward fire. In a dry year like this, hazard is created by natural conditions. Risk, however, is controllable. It refers to the people who are occupying the country, and how careful they are with their environment.

Both the Forest Service in Big Sur and the Division of Forestry on Carmel Hill are equipped and constantly in training for the possibility of an emergency. At the Big Sur Forest Service headquarters, a crew of seven men are available for firefighting duty, and their daily routine includes practicing firefighting techniques, testing their skills, and upkeep of their machinery. The Division of Forestry had eight men on duty, 24-hours a day.

"Because of the fire hazard we've beefed up our fire prevention program," says Weston, "and have hired additional fire prevention aids to inspect residences. We also got more money for our fire engine patrol, and a few extra firefighters."

The crews are ready to leave on a moments notice if they receive word of a fire. And fires they respond to are not necessarily in the Monterey Peninsula area. They are on call to contribute their services to any Forest Service in California which might need reinforcements.

"We just got back from four days in the Yosemite area, where they had 15 small fires," says Steen. "We got word that they needed a tank truck and a crew to man it, so we drove on up."

The nice thing about this generous cooperation between fire crews is that it works both ways; if the Los Padres National Forest had a bad fire, there would be hundreds of firefighters available from up and down California within hours. At the recent fire in the Indians area, which burned 12,000 acres, approximately 300 men were on the scene within three hours. "And that's a pretty remote area," comments Steen.

An elaborate dispatch system is responsible for that high speed of response. And, once notified, the use of helicopters (one in Arroyo Seco and one in the Indians) can bring firefighters to the scene of the fire within minutes.

"Our main emphasis lies in hitting a fire hard and fast," says Weston, "before it turns into a major disaster."

A good part of Steen's daily routine in Big Sur is to circulate around the community, inspecting homes for fire danger, talking to resort and gas station owners, and checking up on campers.

"Each home has to be inspected once a year," says Steen, "so while I'm doing that I can warn homeowners about fire behavior and what to look out for."

The Division of Forestry also has a home inspection program in the Carmel-Carmel Valley area.

"We have a fire prevention aide going door-to-door in high danger areas, inspecting the safety of the houses," says Weston. "The problem is that people are building houses in dense brush areas, so you just can't let that brush catch fire and burn."

A wilderness permit is required for all visitors who plan to enter the back country of Carmel Valley and Big Sur, and the issuing of that permit provides a good opportunity to warn campers about weather conditions, trouble areas, and where it is safe to camp and build fires. There are also three backcountry patrolmen continually circulating on the trails to enforce laws and talk to hikers about the fire hazards.

"Often an area may look safe for a campfire — like under a redwood tree, in moist decomposed material," says Steen. "But it is organic, flammable material. Once you start a fire, you may not be able to extinguish it."

Weston feels that community members are really working on fire prevention. A large problem lies with educating the tourists, however.

"We get people from the city visiting the area who don't understand the hazard of fire," says Weston. "They hike into the backcountry and build open fires."

Children pose another problem.

"We've got to make parents aware that this is not the year for their children to be outside, experimenting with matches."

In all areas, there seems to be a lot of community cooperation and hard work. In Big Sur a group called the Volunteer Fire Brigade has organized itself to fight structure fires in the area. They also answer brush and forest fire calls. Other groups have cropped up in Palo Colorado, mid-Carmel Valley, and the village.

It is Weston's hope that a Red Flag Alert system will soon be in effect throughout the Peninsula. Through a notification and educational process, utilizing all forms of media, fire stations and community members, citizens would be alerted on days where fire hazard was especially high. The number of patrolling fire trucks would be increased, each flying a red warning flag on their vehicle.

"We always ask people to be cautious with fire," says Weston, "but the Red Flag Alert would notify people that 'today we really mean it.' "

So far, people have been very careful.

"We need them to continue to be careful," says Steen, "through fire season, which ends in November."

This summer, most of the Andrew Molera State Park and the Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park in the Big Sur area have been closed because of fire danger. Steen sees no prospect of the rest of the national forest being closed this season, however.

Valleyite joins "Up With People"

When the auditions were held locally last spring for bright new faces to join the touring casts of "Up With People", it came as no surprise to his many friends when a personable young Carmel Valley resident was selected and began an intensive six-week training course last week in Tucson, Arizona.

THERE HAS BEEN a change of pace for "swimmin' Ken Conklin" of the Carmel Barracuda Swim Team to "Swingin' Ken Conklin" of the "Up With People" song and dance touring cast.

Ken Conklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Conklin of Boronda Road, well remembered for his versatile roles with the drama department at Carmel High School, has been assigned to live with an Arizona host family while in rehearsal. Their year's itinerary is indefinite, but each cast has been assured that their tour will take them out of the United States to appear in such far away places as South America, Scandinavia, Europe and for the first time, "Up With People" is going to the South Seas.

One of the best known swimmers in AAU and tri-county competition, Ken was honored by parents, coaches, and fellow teammates of the Carmel Barracudas at the Hollister dual meet where he was presented a plaque in appreciation of his leadership, sportsmanship and contribution to the team. The 18-year-old retired from the CVAL having broken nine team records and was a three-time recipient of the most valuable swimmer award. This year he had combined coaching and swimming with the team. Ken was also an outstanding participant in water polo and on the Padre Swim Team at Carmel High.

"Games Galore", a punch party following the Watsonville swim meet, served as a farewell team party for Ken who co-organized the event with coach Rich Holine. Hosted at the Conklin home on the River, older Barracuda swimmers and divers were teamed with younger 'Cudas for a progressive tournament of games including ping pong and shuffle-board. Prizes were donated by the Cottage of Sweets in Carmel.

Our very best wishes to Ken on his new exciting venture.

Twirl Club

It has been a busy year marked with success for the members of the Carmel Twirl Club. Beginning in January, they placed third in the Concord Blue Devils Tournament held in Concord; first in the Dance and Twirl Club of the Monterey Peninsula Tournament held in Seaside in March; and first in the Union City Los Companeros Tournament held in San Mateo in March.

They competed in the Rebel Kadets Tournament in San Jose in April where they placed third; took first in the U.S.T.A. California Baton Council competition in San Jose in May; and top honors and three state team championships at the United States Twirling Association State Championships in May.

They have also participated in several summer parades including; Miss California Pageant in Santa Cruz, Seaside on July 4th, the San Juan Bautista Parade and the Kiddie Caper parade during Big Week in Salinas.

We just can't say PLEASE anymore!

We tried saying 'Please' about water conservation, but consumer demand on an already heavily taxed system continued to rise . . . Some scoffed at a voluntary odd-even watering plan as 'too simple' and ineffective, even though municipalities across the United States found success with the plan, when it was imposed as a rule.

The facts are: California has suffered one of its driest years on record. Water supplies here in the Monterey District cannot support uncontrolled consumer demand. The Public Utilities Commission recognized this when it imposed water rationing.

Today, although we're operating under Phase Zero, water conservation is no longer a choice . . . water conservation must become a fact of life.

Think Water Conservation. Every day.

Riverside extension denied

Riverside Campground, a perennial object of controversy in the valley, set off another heated debate before county planners last week, resulting in the denial of an application to increase campsites.

Planning commissioners, who noted Riverside Campgrounds, on Schulte Road, has made more appearances before the commission than any other Valley property in history, unanimously denied the expansion proposal of owner Dorothy Ross.

Ross asked permission to increase the trailer spaces from 20 to 34 and asked that campers be allowed to remain at Riverside for 60, instead of 14, days during the winter months. She also requested that her permit be extended for five years, not just one.

At the same time, Ross' attorney Brian Finnegan told planners she intends to spend $20,000 to upgrade the property if the permit is approved.

Schulte Road neighbors William Brown and John and Patricia Bernardi appeared before the commission, complaining about trash, fires, firewood gathering and noise.

Commissioner Leon Stutzman agreed that the campground should never have been allowed in a residential area in the first place, thus rejecting the idea of further expansion, but he also offered a compromise of a two-year permit, allowing a 21-day stay during the winter months.

Seniors lose...

Du Hamel of Los Altos Hills was tagged with the loss. Again, the big bats were evident as Mark Dodd powered a Pete Rose-style home run 375 feet, and David McKenzie backed him up with a home run to left that would be over the fence at Candlestick Park. John Lucido contributed a triple for the Carmelites.

The next night (last Friday), Carmel again took on the ogre — Cupertino National — and this time emerged victorious 7-1 behind the pitching of Mark Dodd. David McKenzie was the outstanding batter in the game with a triple to his credit. This win put Carmel in the familiar position of a Saturday doubleheader for the Region IV crown. In this do-or-die round, a loss for Carmel would have put a stop to the action, but Carmel hung on till the last moment by defeating San Mateo 6-4 in the opener behind the pitching of John Lucido, who allowed four hits but fanned 10. Mark Dodd accounted for all six Carmel runs as he belted a grand slam home run in the first inning for four, scored a run in the third, and scored on Tim Sherman's RBI single in the fifth. Carmel executed a double play in the fifth inning as John Lucido relayed to Mark Dodd, who went to first baseman Andy Fremier for the second of the two outs.

In the money game, San Mateo bested Carmel 6-2. San Mateo is now competing in the Northern California Division Tournament in San Jose.

Eastern dances scheduled

Mimi and Lesandre, two young classical Eastern dancers, will bring their art to the stage of Carmel's Forest Theater on Sunday, Aug. 8, as part of the free city-sponsored Sunday Afternoon Concert Series.

The dancers, who have made a study in depth of the dances of many Eastern cultures, have payed special attention to the "Bharata Natyam" of India. In the course of the program, the performers will give some program notes designed to aid a Western audience in understanding some of the mystic, spiritual, and cultural background of the dances and of the time and place of their origin.

The magnificent costumes used in this performance have been designed and created by the artists as has been the choreography. Music, authentic in all details, has been captured on professionally produced tapes so that the entire program emerges as a delightful and coherent unity.

As do all of the Carmel Summer Sunday Concerts, the Mimi and Lesandre program begins at 2 p.m.

Joe Regelski

The liner notes to the new Mark-Almond album read "conceived and written in Carmel, California" and "Special thanks to Supersound Studios, Monterey, California" — still more proof that the number of talented musicians moving to the Peninsula is ever increasing.

"To The Heart" is the first album that Pebble Beach residents Jon Mark and Johnny Almond have recorded together in over two years and the return of Almond's lush sax and flute lines to Mark's simple yet beautiful melodies is a work of genius.

But back to the credits. Jon Mark checked out the recording facilities at Supersound a little over a year ago and asked his former recording company — Columbia — for permission to record his second solo album there. Columbia okayed the move and the songs were completed. However, at the same time Mark was negotiating with ABC Records and signed a deal for the Mark-Almond Band. As a result, Columbia took the tapes for Mark's album and have not yet announced a release date.

The band appears to be ready to hit the road again with tentative dates set for the Boarding House in San Francisco (August 24-29) and The Golden Bear in Huntington Beach (August 13-15).

Hopefully, the next album will be recorded here in Monterey and the remaining members of the unit will move to the area. Their music bridges the jazz-folk-rock lines with undetectable quickness and it would be great to have such talented folk jamming on the local stages from time to time.

Carmel classical guitarist Terrence Farrell is combining his musical talents with those of flutist Jaqueline Rosen at the Del Monte Lodge in Pebble Beach on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. in the lounge.

Farrell tells me the atmosphere is low key and conducive to the music and the public that support classical fare in this area.

RADIO BIZ: You'll be hearing a lot of new voices on KIDD and KRML in the near future. Gene Rusco and Les Turpin quit KIDD on short notice last week leaving the 6 a.m. to 3 p.m. announcing slots up for grabs. Still no word on permanent replacements for Gene and Les.

Meanwhile, over at KRML, owner Sam Salerno has been filling in at the 6 to 9 a.m. slot originally held by sales manager Dave Draxler. Draxler left KRML to take over the No. 2 sales spot at Salinas country outlet KTOM. Dave will have the Monterey-Carmel territory. Salerno will also have to find a replacement for Bob Walker who will be leaving the 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. weekday slot to take over the 6 to 11 morning position on KLRB effective August 16.

And look for more changes in the future once the latest ratings are made public this week. The most interesting battles should be KDON-KMBY's battle for the teenyboppers and KWAV's performance against FM rockers KLRB and Salinas' KBEZ.

Peninsula writer Randy Reinstedt promises a new book on lost treasures and pirate happenings along the Monterey environs by late August.

According to Randy "There are substantial sums of booty stashed away and never found in this area." This area includes Salinas, the Carmel Valley and the Central coast from Monterey to the Los Burros Mining district near San Luis Obispo.

Reinstedt has talked to folks who have found some of the treasure which dates back to the Sir Francis Drake era all the way to 1948 but he carefully makes two points. "The reader should remember that the maps that will be included in the book are not treasure maps — they only approximate the locations. Also, most of the lost treasure is located on private property and people should get the permission of the landowners before setting out to make their fortunes."

Reinstedt, who regularly writes the "Portraits of the Past" series for the Monterey Savings and Loan's house magazine, says he decided to do the book after he received a lot of mail every time he wrote about pirates and-or treasure in the magazine. The title and official publication date should be made public next week.

If you long to see a fine pirate movie, then pack up the family and head over to the Carmel Center Cinemas to see "Swashbuckler". Robert Shaw is Universal's answer to Errol Flynn and easily dominates any scene he's in. James Earl Jones is perfect as his partner in the robbing-the-rich-to-give-to-the-poor world they inhabit.

Forest Theater

'Comedy' on again this weekend

Mirth and rowdy Elizabethan humour return to Carmel's outdoor Forest Theater this weekend, August 5, 6, and 7, as the Guild again presents it's production of Shakespeare's The Comedy of Errors.

Comedy is the story of two sets of identical twins, separated as young children, who suddenly find themselves in the same city at the same time. Identities become hopelessly confused as wives and husbands, masters and slaves, are all interchanged! Funds are misplaced, goods misdelivered, and erroneous arrests made. "Magic" and "inspiration" rule the day.

This madcap comedy is directed by Peter B. Magee, local director and actor; and features Ernest Zeppa and Harry Rogers as the Antipholus twins, and Richard Pettit and Adam Lembeck as their witty, beaten and berated servant twins, Dromio.

Monica LaVelle and Annie Holt Atherton play the beautiful, perplexed, sister team. Jeff Hudelson, in his fifth year with the Forest Theater's Shakespeare productions, is the ubiquitous Goldsmith; and Mark Shuler, the doddering Merchant. Susan Tescher, Brad Clark, Carrol and Steven Moorer, John Middelton Tidwell, Stephen and Michael Dirk, and Ellen Kester round out the cast.

The Comedy of Errors and Macbeth, jointly produced by the Forest Theater Guild and Monterey Peninsula College, will alternate weekends throughout the summer at the outdoor theater on Mt. View and Santa Rita Streets, Carmel. The fires are always blazing at the Forest, and coffee and hot cider available. The wearing of warm attire is recommended for the enjoyment of Shakespeare under the stars.

Performances are Thursday, Friday, and Saturday at 8:30 p.m., with the box office open at 7:30 p.m. nights of the show. Tickets may also be purchased at Carmel Music and Lily Walker Records and Music in Carmel. Call 624-1531 for further information.

Tickets on sale for jazz festival

Single tickets to the Nineteenth Annual Monterey Jazz Festival, Sept. 17-19, go on sale at major box offices Aug. 5.

The festival, to be held on the Monterey County Fairgrounds in its 7000-seat outdoor arena, will consist of five weekend concerts — Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings and Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Season tickets to all five concerts are still available at less than box office prices for individual concert tickets. Regular season ticket sales end July 31.

Season ticket information is available at The Monterey Jazz Festival, P.O. Box JAZZ, Monterey, CA. 93940. (415) 373-3366.

Prices for season ticket are $34.25, $29.75, or $24.75.

Single tickets on sale at the conclusion of season ticket sales, will be $7 and $6 for the evening performances and $5 and $4 for the afternoon performances. All seats are reserved. There are no more $8.50 tickets available.

While a few artists such as Count Basie, James Cotton, Jimmy Witherspoon, Dizzy Gillespie, Helen Humes and Johnny Shines have already been announced, formal lineup of artists for this year's festival is expected to be made public soon.

Racing photographs on exhibit in P.G.

An exhibition of Laguna Seca Raceway motor racing photographs is now on display at The Camera Exchange in Pacific Grove.

The collection of color and black and white prints is the result of the first Laguna Seca Photo Seminar conducted May 1 and 2 at The Monterey Triple Crown. 54 photographers, working under the direction of Laguna Seca staff photographer Dave Allen and Bill Paullus of The Camera Exchange, submitted nearly 500 prints and slides in competition for the exhibition.

Of these approximately 80 prints will be on view Monday through Friday between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. at The Camera Exchange, 549 Lighthouse Avenue in Pacific Grove. The exhibition will remain on display through Monday, August 16.

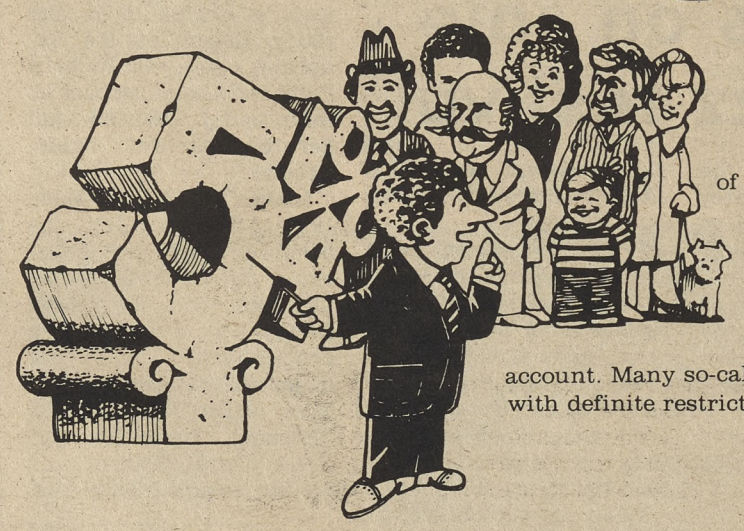
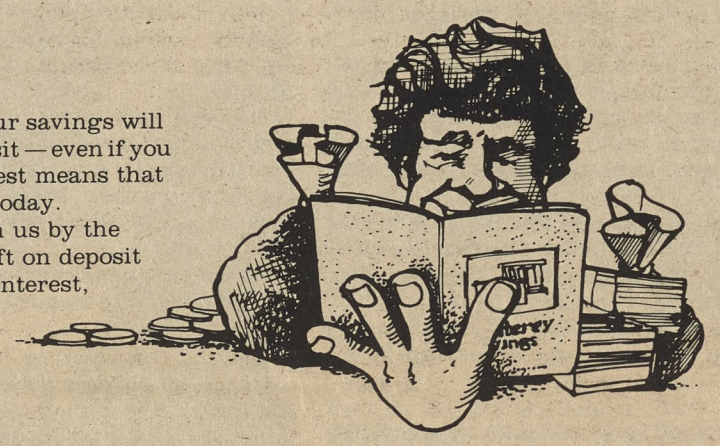
Savings Rate Guide for Beginners

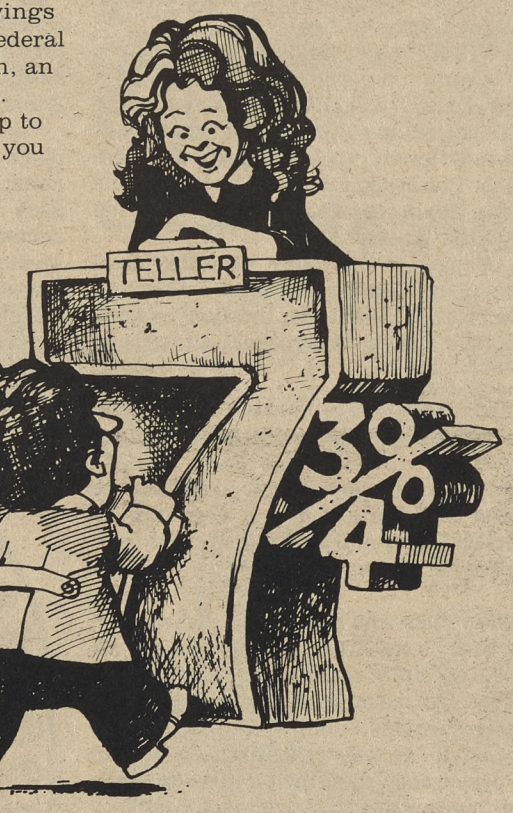


OUR REGULAR 5¼% PASSBOOK SAVINGS ACCOUNT EXPLAINED: This is the most basic and popular savings account — the account everyone thinks of when they talk about "savings." And aside from paying you 5¼% interest, compounded daily, our Passbook Account offers you flexibility. You can put your money in or take it out whenever you wish. It happens to be our best seller and a real favorite with our customers. Now, how does our 5¼% Passbook Account stack up? Well, the banks simply don't pay as high a rate for the same type of account. Many so-called "passbook accounts" are really certificates of deposit with definite restrictions. It might pay you to check on this.

DAY-TO-DAY INTEREST, WHAT IS IT? It means that your savings will earn interest, literally, for every day your money is on deposit — even if you take it out before the end of the quarter. Day-to-day interest means that you will be just a little bit richer tomorrow than you are today. And here's something else we offer: money deposited with us by the 10th of the month will earn interest from the 1st when left on deposit until the end of the quarter. That's up to 10 free days of interest, and again, a little bit richer for you.



WHAT ABOUT SAFETY ON YOUR SAVINGS? At Monterey Savings, your dollars are safeguarded by sound local investment, substantial reserves, and conscientious local management. In addition, your savings with us are insured to $40,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, an agency of the United States Government. Combined accounts can be insured for up to $560,000. Safety? At Monterey Savings you can count on it!



HOW TO EARN AS MUCH AS 7¾% ON YOUR SAVINGS. If you plan to keep or put your savings aside for a while, you should consider our 7¾% Savings Certificate (actually, 8.06% when held to maturity). It has a minimum term requirement of six to ten years on an opening balance of $1,000 or more. Also available are Savings Certificates paying 5¾% - 6½% - 6¾% and 7½% interest. These higher interest rates are possible because of your time commitment to us with your savings. Federal regulations require an interest penalty for early withdrawals from Certificate Accounts. When it comes to saving money, come to Monterey Savings where interest is always compounded daily.

And for additional peace of mind, we think that you'll be as proud as we are to know that the dollars you save with us stay here in the Monterey Bay Area, where they belong. Not many associations can stake that claim, and in the long run, it could make your entire life a whole lot richer.

"I never had a swimming lesson in my life," declared our macho friend. "My dad threw me off the end of the dock and it was sink or swim."

Oh sure, we've heard that story before. And it probably is just a story. "But what about the kids who sink?" we wonder. "Do they drown?"

"Sink or swim" is not a good way to learn how to swim. Because it isn't, public and private pools all across the country offer swimming lessons. More and more of these pools are also offering a pre-swimming-lessons course designed to introduce beginners safely and happily to the water. Pollywog swimmers learn to splash, to blow bubbles, to put their head in the water, and to play games that increase their confidence. Pollywog graduates go on to beginning swim lessons in fine shape to learn something.

Something of the sort is needed for horsemanship. Too many parents still buy their child a horse and expect them to learn all about caring and using the animal from the thin air. "Turn 'em loose, the horse will teach 'em!" That's the equivalent of throwing the kid off the dock into deep water.

Other well meaning parents sign up for expensive riding lessons and then insist the child do just that — ride! — from the very first lesson. "We're not paying all this money for you to fool around with ground work. Get up on that saddle!" Sink or swim.

If there were Pollywog courses for horsemanship what would they be like? What would get the beginning horseman "dirty" the way a Pollywog course gets the beginning swimmer "wet?"

How can safety be taught so that each child learns to keep himself safe?

Some years ago we taught such a course to a group of Cadette Girl Scouts from an underprivileged urban neighborhood. This year we have been teaching a similar course to younger Girl Scouts at their Carmel Valley Day Camp held July 28 through Aug. 6 at the Little League Field on Paso Hondo.

The first day's introductory session established groups of seven to nine scouts and set up some safety ground rules. With some severity we admonished girls who interrupted or engaged in unauthorized activities. Without a firm framework, little learning can take place. Also, around horses, horseplay can be hazardous!

We feel strongly that for small children and even for large ones, small ponies are the right place to begin. The eyeball to eyeball contact is important — also the shoulder to shoulder contact. After an icebreaking demonstration by a trick pony we showed each child how to lead a pony by pushing against it when necessary.

Not being afraid of such a small animal, each child pushed willingly. Each was able to successfully lead a pony the first time. Small ponies move when shoved by small people — a horse might not. However, after leading a small pony each child was immediately able to lead a large horse because they understood how to push and put their whole heart into it.

We tell the children that "regardless of what your nervous mommy told you, horses don't kick." But they do bite... and we show how to encourage a pony to bite by stroking its nostrils. Also they will step on you "so keep counting your toes." These warnings do not alarm the children but do make them properly watchful.

On Day Two, we lead the ponies further and give the smaller children pony rides. We've only been learning horses two days and are already teaching the little kids! Self reliance flies above our camp like the flag on the flag pole.

On Day Three, we get on and off the ponies in a variety of ways. Here's the reason for it: When riding, small children do not make "adaptive movements" to the motion of the horse. They'll start to slip a little and will slip a little more at each step without attempting to right themselves. Shortly they get frightened because they are so far off-balance. Even older children, especially adult dependent ones, sit "frozen at the stick" like this.

So we get on the horse and get right off again. We do it a lot of different ways. Day Three is ALL adaptive movements between the horse and the ground.

A danger of children in groups is that they get over excited. They fling themselves about dangerously. We cool things off by practicing each stunt dismount first on a wooden saw horse, then on a small pony, finally on a horse. We jump on and off, slither over on our tummies, kneel, stand and leap, and learn a flying dismount.

On Day Four we park the bareback pony on a hillside and use his bare back as a slide. We lead each other about and practice our stunts on a moving animal. We learn about saddles and bridles. We have a vaulting demonstration by a very young child who's been to riding camp.

Group dynamics have been very important in instruction. A child who is unaccustomed to horses may be very leery of trying the stunts we are throwing at them. But in a group they find themselves successful before they've dared to refuse.

In our camp we go on to harnessing and driving ponies to a pony cart. This involves the entire group and does not discriminate against those who may be uncoordinated or fearful. The other convenient thing about driving is that each child can learn to do it in very few minutes. How glorious to drive a pony and take oneself and one's friends trip-trap-trip-trap down the road.

Sneaky, teacher... harnessing teaches parts of the horse without one of those boring chart-and-word sessions. It also teaches "How to struggle with a balky animal and come out a winner." This is always a difficult hump for the beginner to get over when mounted. Just as leading a small pony teaches one to lead a big horse, making a pony go in harness gives a child the necessary grit to make a horse do a lot of things.

So our junior Girl Scouts become gritty, determined, confident and strong. They're also "drown proofed" around horses. Girl Scouting teaches character and so does horsemanship. Like Girl Scout day camp, a "Pollywog" course in horsemanship can open the door to bigger things.

Sources of Energy—No. 7 of a series

First, the good news.

The coal resources of the United States are large enough to satisfy all of the nation's energy needs for 200 years or more. Most of it is in the Western states, and fortunately much of it is low in sulfur content.

PG&E is actively investigating coal as a future fuel for power generation, and we have recently acquired substantial coal reserves in Utah.

Now, the bad news.

Reliance on coal resources for a major part of California's energy supply would create considerable logistical and environmental problems.

Unfortunately, there is no coal in commercial quantity in California, and the closest is almost 1,000 miles away. A 2,000 megawatt power plant would require shipments of 137 rail carloads of coal a day and burning it would produce 900 tons of ash a day—a substantial waste disposal problem.

Even if approval could be obtained from sister Western states to burn coal there and transmit the electricity to California, it would be more costly than locating the plants in California.

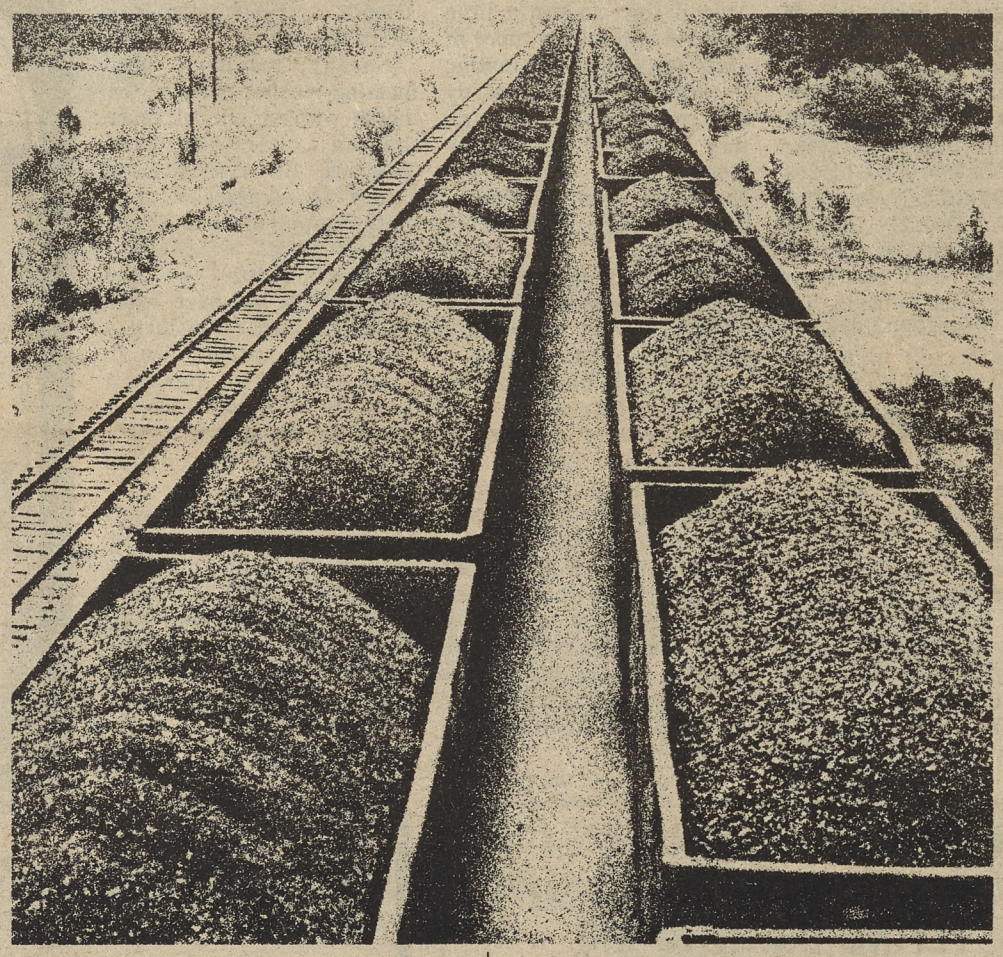
However, we shall continue to work on solving the problems and to develop our coal resources. Coal is one of the primary energy sources needed to help meet California's growing energy needs.

Other sources of energy.

There are 5 sources of energy which PG&E now uses for generating electricity.

Northern California has one of the nation's most extensive hydroelectric systems. It produces relatively inexpensive electricity. But nearly all economical and acceptable hydro sites have already been developed.

That's why natural gas and oil have become more prominent in our energy mix. Unfortunately, the costs of these fossil fuels have been skyrocketing. In just 5 years, the price of fuel oil has increased sixfold and the average price for natural gas has tripled, accounting for most of our rate increases.



We have the nation's only geothermal power development, largest in the world, and we are expanding it. However, we estimate it would supply only about 10 percent of our needs by 1985.

These limitations are reasons why our fifth primary source of energy—nuclear—is so important, and why we, like other utility systems here and abroad, have turned to uranium as power plant fuel. When our two nuclear units at Diablo Canyon go into operation, they can produce electricity for about 40 percent less than new oil-fired plants, despite higher initial construction costs.

Wind, solar, garbage, tides, ocean thermal differences, fusion and other developing technologies may someday help us supply your energy. Some may take years to prove out. Others may never become efficient or reliable enough to be competitive. But if and when they are ready, we'll be ready too. In the meantime, we must meet your demands for electricity.

Facing the problem together

The demand for electricity continues to grow, partly because population itself continues to grow. And the problem of meeting this growing demand is critical.

For our part, we will continue our urgent efforts to develop all available sources, to find new ways to use energy more efficiently, and to keep you provided with adequate energy and reliable service at the lowest possible cost. For your part, the effective way to help control the spiraling cost of energy is to use less of it. We encourage you to do so because the energy you use is too precious...and too costly...to waste.

Save energy- you'll save money, too.

Registration due at MPC

Friday, Aug. 13 is the final day for walk-in registration at Monterey Peninsula College. Fall classes will commence on Thursday, Aug. 19.

Under the walk-in procedure, any prospective student 18 years of age or over may go to the admissions office in the Student Services Building, fill out the required admissions forms and complete registration. No registration appointment is necessary.

Late registration at MPC will begin on Monday, Aug. 16 and will continue to Sept. 1, Mrs Sally Jones, college registrar, says. As some classes which closed early in the registration process may open up again when school starts, she suggests that students with a strong interest in a particular course check back at the registration desk for possible openings the first week of classes.

Registration fees include a College Center fee of $5. Health fees are $5 for day students and $2 for those who attend classes in the evening. Some classes may also require special fees, Mrs. Jones said.

Tuition fees for out of state and foreign students are $32 per unit.

Courses as diversified as Water Economy and Soil Penetration, Basic Class Piano and Women in Religion are among the new courses to be offered this fall.

The courses are in addition to those in the liberal arts

CAROL HEILAND of Carmel Valley, pictured taking her horse, Sweet Honesty, over a jump at Laguna Seca Training Stables, is one of the riders participating in the 1976 Monterey National Horse Show being held this week at the Monterey County Fairgrounds in Monterey. Daily programs at 1:30 and 7:45 p.m. in Pattee Arena will continue through Saturday, Aug. 7. Carol is a seventh grader at Middle School.

Horse show continues to Aug. 7

Champion horses and champion riders from all over the West are currently taking part in the 1976 Monterey National Horse Show which will continue through Saturday evening Aug. 7 at the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

Two shows a day — 1:30 and 7:45 p.m. — in Pattee Arena feature a variety of Western and English classes, with the jumper classes causing the most excitement. Saturday night the $500 Puissance class (with the jumps raised until only one horse is left in competiton) is expected to attract the usual capacity crowd, but each afternoon and evening jumping classes are interspersed with Western, walking horse, hackney pony, saddle horse and other classes, with team roping scheduled for Friday and Saturday evenings.

A special feature of this year's show is a vaulting demonstration by the Sequoia Vaulters of Coalinga and the 4-H Leprechaun Vaulters of Watsonville, young riders who demonstrate horseback gymnastics.

LESLEY J. MILLER has been named assistant manager of Wells Fargo Bank's Carmel Valley office. The announcement was made by vice-president and Monterey Bay region manager George A. Dujmovich. Miss Miller was most recently a banking services officer at the Monterey office, where she joined Wells Fargo in 1966.

Winnebago Tour

Welcome home to the Dale Buche family who returned this week from a three-and-one-half week family Winnebago tour of Iowa, Michigan and Indiana where they visited friends and family including cousins, aunts, uncles and great aunts and great uncles who had never met the five Buche children before the large family reunion.

They visited Dale's father and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Buche in Ames, Iowa and stayed at the family farm in Boone, Indiana. Fishing was good in Crown Point, Indiana where they were the guests of Dale's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dean Buche, and attended an auction of treasures, "100 years or older."

Gail's mother and relatives, the Higgins family, reside in Swartz Creek, Michigan, a fine base from which Brent, Brock and Kurt toured the General Motors plant with their uncle.

4-H Awards

"The Buckeye and Boronda 4-H Clubs held their awards night and family barbecue last Thursday evening at the Community Center, "according to the Buckeye reporter, Hyllery Yuma. "The Buckeye 4-H was presented with a Club Gold Seal for last year's activities and participation.

Individual awards went to: Ashley Swanson, Gold Star; Silver Star, Mary Jane Reuter and Winifred Reuter; Bronze Star, David Busick, Hyllery Yuma and Cara Yuma.

The show is currently being produced at the Cannery Row Dinner Theater.

OLD BUSINESS:

The chamber sign should be up in a few days at the Oak Building. It will read, "Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce...Fun in the Sun...Visitor Information." Chuck Strathmeyer is working on the brochure rack, but the horse show has intervened and he is working on that for the next couple of weeks.

The "Directory" Committee, Ron Hunter and John Tobias will have something to report at the next meeting.

Membership Drive: We will send statements to the members who have not paid their dues for this year. Lee suggested that we have a membership drive Friday, August 20, and give publicity to it in the local newspapers, and all meet afterwards for a little get-together. Motioned and carried that the membership from August '76 to April 1 '77 will be $15. Lou Allaire suggested that we visit prospects in pairs. John Tobias suggested that we be assigned names of prospects from the non-member list, possibly geographically.

Mini-Park: The owner of the land asked for a diagram of the park, benches, plants, fencing, etc. Carmel Valley Sand and Gravel offered us free sand and gravel. At the next meeting we will have information as to whether we can proceed.

NEW BUSINESS:

The Carmel Business Association Barbecue is Friday, Sept. 10, at Hidden Valley. Lee suggested that we make it a joint affair and get to know the Carmel people. Tickets will be available at our August meeting.

Carmel Valley Master Plan: Lee read letters from Sam Farr. A committee was formed to answer his letters: Lou Allaire, Dr. Marcucci, Rex White, Lou Gardner and Lee Mink.

Swarz Memorial Park: We are responsible for maintaining the park. We receive $25 per quarter from the Robert Swarz Trust to take care of the park. The problem is how to keep it policed, to prevent vandalism, and how to keep it clean. Randy suggested that the trees be pruned back to open it up to full view. Mike Rohan said that for a nominal cost PG&E will put a street light on the power pole. Ron Hunter suggested that we hire someone to clean it several times a week. The bank, who owns the land, says it's a serious problem. Lee will get someone to take care of it and see about a street light.

Peninsula gardeners may be interested in Exotics: Flowering and Foliage House Plans and the water economy course. Principles of Bank Operations, Analyzing Financial Statements, Principles of Real Estate will be offered in the business and estate fields. Particularly designed for women will be Women in Assertiveness Training and Women in Religion.

Other new courses are Shorthand Theory-Gregg, Introduction to Engineering Technology, Dwelling House Construction, Composition, Introduction to Fire Protection, Basic Class Piano, Intermediate Swimming and Reducing Family Friction. All courses run the full semester.

Two consecutive eight-week courses in World Sea Travel and Navigation will be offered at the college.

For further information on registration for fall semester, call the MPC Admissions Office at 649-1150, ext. 210, 211 or 217.

Pets & Livestock

AUSTRALIAN SHEPHERD PUPPIES — 3 males, 3 females. The sire was a beautiful strawberry merle and the dam was a lovable blue merle (both papered); the results were healthy, intellegent, good natured, unusually marked puppies. These puppies will be ready for placement in loving homes in 2 more weeks. If you have love to spare and are interested in adding a new member to your family, call 372-6287 (this time the phone number is correct) after 6:00. If you have been considering a pet for your family or yourself, the Australian Shepherd will prove itself as a worthy companion.
